Will Not Resign as Governor of New York If Nominated and Will Not Go to Houston.

New York, June 21.—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith declared tonight he had not altered his previous statement of belief that "there should be amendment of the present prohibition provisions."

The governor's statement was made in reply to a written question presented to him by a reporter of a local newspaper, as follows:

"In view of the question raised about Norman Mack's statement, the World wishes to know: Have you changed your belief that there should be amendment of the present prohibition provisions?"

"I have not," the governor replied verbally, with emphasis on the negative.

In a formal statement issued at Houston early today Norman E. Mack, national committeeman from New York, had said Governor Smith "believes if any state desires a certain alcoholic content of beverage that state has the right to determine that content." He added that if a state wished to be wet, it should say so. Subsequently, Mr. Mack explained the views were his own and he did not speak for the New York governor.

Governor Smith was informed there is a report current that, in the event of his nomination as presidential candidate, he would resign as the governor of the state of New York. The governor replied: "There is nothing to that."

Asked if he would suggest the name of a person for vice presidential nominee, Governor Smith replied: "That is something those boys will have to work out down there. Collective judgment is always the best."

WOMEN IN FRONT OF DRY FIGHT

Reed May Get Seat on Floor in Hope To Use Oratorical Power on Convention.

BY ROBERT H. WILSON, Staff Correspondent.

Warm Springs, Ga., June 21.—(Special).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will place the name of Governor Alfred E. Smith in nomination at the democratic national convention at Houston next week, declared here today that the "nomination of Governor Smith is more and more probable."

Smith is more and more probable and made a plea for party harmony and the uniting of the forces of democracy behind the standard-bearer who will be selected at the convention.

"Take a leaf from the notebook of the republicans," Mr. Roosevelt urged. "They do a lot of squabbling before their convention, but once they have nominated, all factions of their party pull together to seek victory."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that the party has a "good chance to elect a democratic president this year, but it will be a hard fight."

Turning to the platform, over which such a fight is expected at Houston next week, Mr. Roosevelt declared there is no single national problem. "There are dozens of them," he asserted.

The former secretary of the navy reminded "that it is well to remember that no platform and no nominee can have the solid approval of every member of a party in every section of the country."

"Not even 48 individual republicans or democrats, to say nothing of 48 states, could agree on every word of every plank in a platform," he said. "And almost every state has its favorite son."

The point to bear in mind, he declared, is that a national convention represents a cross-section of 48 states, could agree on every word of every plank in a platform," he said. "And almost every state has its favorite son."

"We are democrats because of fundamental convictions dating back to Thomas Jefferson," he asserted. "We expect, no matter where we live, to play square with our party and to do all we can to elect a democratic government."

Mr. Roosevelt said he "could well understand the loyalty of the state of Georgia to its junior senator, Walter F. George, and I have a high regard for Senator George. It is entirely proper that the Georgia delegation should do everything in its power to advance his candidacy."

"I am now almost as much a resident of Georgia as I am of upstate New York," he remarked. "And I find a great resemblance between the two states are very similar, not only in scenery but also in the people."

Roosevelt arrived here Tuesday night for a two-day rest before leaving Thursday night for Houston. He will return following the convention for a brief stay to superintend the starting of work on a large glass inclosed pool for use at the springs in the winter months.

MURDERS HORRIFY ALL OF JUGO-SLAVIA

Balkan Peasants Riot After News of Slayings in Parliament; More Outbreaks Are Feared.

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, June 21.—(AP)—Recovering from the first shock of horror over the shooting affair in the Jugo-Slavian parliament yesterday, the entire nation tonight was ready to make amends for the wild act of one of its legislators.

Standing beside the body of her husband, Mme. Paul Raditch sounded a note which is finding an echo in all quarters. She said: "Let Paul's life be the last sacrifice in the pacification of the Croats and Serbs."

It now seems that Raditch's effort to save the life of the assassin Stefan Raditch, was not in vain. The fiery leader of the peasant party, wounded before Paul threw himself in front of the assassin Raditch's revolver, has good chances of recovery. If Stefan Raditch survives it is hoped that he will use his great influence among the Croatian peasants to calm the storm of feeling that has arisen among them.

Much apprehension is felt in government circles, respecting the situation in Croatia. The fears will not begin to subside until after the funeral of the victims at Zagreb on Saturday.

There was long and serious rioting at Zagreb today. Accounts of the tragedy reached there indicating that both Paul and Stefan Raditch had been killed. A great wave of anger started and resulted in street demonstrations.

When police tried to disperse the meetings, sharp fighting broke out. Bullets issued this evening on the condition of the wounded deputies said that Stefan Raditch was making fairly satisfactory progress. It was found that the bullet lodged above the heart and did not pierce the aorta.

There is no indication yet as to when the next meeting of the parliament will be called.

Asa G. Candler, Jr., Sells Southeastern Compress Co. To Anderson, Clayton & Co.

$4,000,000 Is Paid by New York Firm for Controlling Interest in Huge Local Concern.

Sale of his controlling interest in the Southeastern Compress and Warehouse company by Asa G. Candler, Jr., to Anderson, Clayton & Co., cotton factors of New York, Houston and Atlanta, for a cash consideration of approximately $4,000,000, was made public Thursday.

Stock in the company, it was announced, will be distributed by the purchasers among other concerns engaged in the purchase, concentration and distribution of cotton.

The big Candler warehouse in West End, a property covering 40 acres of land, with storage facilities for 350,000 bales and with two huge compresses, is included in the properties involved in the transfer.

An Investment Transaction.

The sale was strictly an investment transaction on Mr. Candler's part, it was understood, and was negotiated between him and William H. Glenn, of Atlanta, president of the compress company, and Fred Cockrell, Atlanta manager of Anderson, Clayton & Co.'s southeastern offices, which are located here.

There will be no change, it was stated, in the management of the properties. Mr. Glenn will continue as president, and T. E. Fugate, of Atlanta as operating vice president and general manager. The offices and principal headquarters will remain in this city.

In addition to the Candler warehouse in West End, the properties involved include warehouses and compresses owned by the Southeastern, including the Atlanta-Edgewood warehouse and compress, plants at Albany, Athens, Augusta, Columbus, Savannah, Macon, Montgomery, Dothan, Toccoa, Troy, Ala., Millen and Opelika, Ala.

Candler's Holdings.

Mr. Candler's holdings represented, it is understood, 22-25ths of the company's stock.

Anderson, Clayton & Co. intend, it was stated, by distribution of the stock among cotton factors all over the south, to bring about a great expansion of the business. This it was pointed out, will strengthen Atlanta's position as a cotton concentration point for the southeast.

In this connection attention was drawn among cotton men Thursday to the probability that Savannah will, in the near future, be designated by congress as a cotton delivery point for both domestic and export trade. Legislation is now pending providing for establishment of a southern delivery point and it is considered as almost certain that, in event of passage of the bill, Savannah will be the place selected.

Should this eventually come about, it was pointed out that Atlanta would handle not only a tremendous amount of cotton for Savannah delivery, but would be southernmost clearing center for the financial end of all southeastern cotton sales.

The Southeastern Compress and Warehouse company, it was stated, has been handling about 1,000,000 bales annually but is capable of a large increase in its output, both for compressing and warehousing.

DE FOOR PROPERTY VALUED AT $18,000

Recommendation that the DeFoor property, sought as a site for a new building, be valued at $18,000, was made at a valuation of $18,000 by the three assessors to Judge John D. Humphries, before whom proceedings are pending.

A minority report, signed by one member of the assessing committee, will recommend an appraised valuation of $40,000.

John S. Owen, the assessor named by the city, and E. River named by Judge Humphries, agreed at the $18,000 figure Thursday afternoon after Mr. Owen had first appraised it at $16,000.

Oliver Dolvin, the third assessor, named by the owner of the property, C. L. DeFoor, will submit the minority report valuing the site at $40,000. In his minority report Mr. Dolvin points out that city tax assessors, when appraising the tract for taxation, placed a figure of $20,350 upon it, on a basis of 70 per cent of the net value of the tract. Mr. Dolvin, he also states, appraised it at $22,500 for the bond commission, as in his opinion, its present market value is $32,500.

The tract contains 19 houses, he adds, with an approximate income of $220 a month.

The property, he says, is an ideal industrial site of 10 acres with frontage on the city's main highway, 1122 feet. Bankhead highway frontage of 413 feet, with all city improvements, sidewalks and concrete street, and a 1,167 feet frontage on Finley street.

For subdivision purposes the property would bring $50,000, Mr. Dolvin declares, stating that the price placed on the property by Mr. DeFoor, of $40,000, is less than its actual value.

There are other tracts available on the same section, Mrs. Dolvin concludes, stating that he has handled many realty sales in the section and is familiar with values there.

Arrest Is Made In Death of Man Found in River

Lawrenceville, Ga., June 21.—(Special.)—Monroe Hopkins, farmer, about 35 years of age, was placed in jail here today, charged with the murder of Ed Huet, whose body was found floating in the Chattahoochee river near Norcross, nearly two weeks ago by the two sons of Lee Carroll. The boys were fishing when they discovered the body floating. They cut a fishing line, tied it to the man's neck and towed the body to shore until they could get help.

The arrest was made by Norcross Policeman Homer Green Thursday on a warrant sworn out by Sam Huet, brother of the dead man, and Hopkins was brought here by Green and turned over to Sheriff McGee.

The sheriff's office and Policeman Green have been diligently working on the case for ten days. According to the sheriff and Solicitor Pemberton Cooley, they have evidence which points strongly to the guilt of Hopkins. It is understood that Hopkins will ask for a commitment trial, but no date has been set for the hearing.

Huet was a man of about 45 and was found on the bank of the river a few days before his death according to the sheriff, none of which was found when the body was taken from the river. It is said that Huet's neck was broken and no water came from his lungs when examined. He had evidently been dead for some time, as the skin had begun to slip on the body, according to Sheriff McGee.

LEWIS ASKS DEMOCRATS TO AVOID TRICK STUFF

Chicago, June 21.—(AP)—The democratic party was advised by former Senator James Hamilton Lewis today to "avoid trick phrases" and take a "straight line" in the campaign for relief and prohibition.

Mr. Lewis addressed the Press Club of Chicago on the eve of his departure for the democratic national convention at Houston.

The former senator condemned what he called "sedition of votes by misunderstanding and misrepresentation."

"The republican party managers at Kansas City," he said, "evaded the issue of the tariff, the tariff issue, and to catch votes of the unwary, announced false promises to escape responsibility for a clear statement of their intentions. The democratic party in certain sections now gives promise of a similar deception."

It is proposed to condemn President Coolidge for the use of the veto of the pretended farm relief bill. Democracy must not descend to the trick of arousing prejudice by an un-American position to gain misled votes."

The president, he observed, may veto what he believes to be an unconstitutional measure.

"Let the democracy affirm the principle of the farm bill if it agrees with it," Mr. Lewis urged, "or deny it if it opposes it, but not condemn the veto as an exercise of illegal power when it knows the president acted as a democrat and his veto should have done if he conscientiously on oath believed a bill illegal and its methods unconstitutional."

CLOUDBURST HITS OZARK RESORT

Springfield, Mo., June 21.—(AP)—A cloudburst last night at Hollister, an Ozark mountain summer resort on Lake Taneycomo, flooded the district sent creeks roaring out of their banks and over highways, washed out six miles of Missouri Pacific railroad track and tore two houses from their foundations.

The railroad was washed out from Branson to Melva. At Presbyterian hill trees were uprooted and cat rocks washed down the hillside onto the highway.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Gravel were rescued from their home as it was washed into the mouth of Turkey creek and lodged against a tree. The home of Mrs. Mary Hillman was moved 125 yards and set in the middle of the highway. The kitchen was partially torn off the house, but dishes in the cupboard remained unmoved.

The storm struck at 10:30 o'clock. Water over the Empire District electric dam reached a height of 59 feet 6 inches, or 9 feet 6 inches over the top, but had dropped two inches at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

Several light summer cottages at Branson were moved from their foundations and many boats were washed away.

How We Advance?

Philadelphia, June 21.—In an encyclopedia published in 1789 under the heading "Woman" appeared just this: "The female of the species. See Homo."

Calvin, in the attention of women delegates to the American Institute of Banking, Miss Emily R. Kneubuhl said that this year women have the power to elect a president of the United States.

Chicago, June 21.—(AP)—The democratic party was advised by former Senator James Hamilton Lewis today to "avoid trick phrases" and take a "straight line" in the campaign for relief and prohibition.

Mr. Lewis addressed the Press Club of Chicago on the eve of his departure for the democratic national convention at Houston.

The former senator condemned what he called "sedition of votes by misunderstanding and misrepresentation."

"The republican party managers at Kansas City," he said, "evaded the issue of the tariff, the tariff issue, and to catch votes of the unwary, announced false promises to escape responsibility for a clear statement of their intentions. The democratic party in certain sections now gives promise of a similar deception."

It is proposed to condemn President Coolidge for the use of the veto of the pretended farm relief bill. Democracy must not descend to the trick of arousing prejudice by an un-American position to gain misled votes."

The president, he observed, may veto what he believes to be an unconstitutional measure.

"Let the democracy affirm the principle of the farm bill if it agrees with it," Mr. Lewis urged, "or deny it if it opposes it, but not condemn the veto as an exercise of illegal power when it knows the president acted as a democrat and his veto should have done if he conscientiously on oath believed a bill illegal and its methods unconstitutional."

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN FOR SOUTHERN PULP

Washington, June 21.—(Special.)—Probability that within the next few days most of the newsprint and other pulp products of the United States will be manufactured from southern pine pulp was expressed here today by Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia.

Senator Harris displayed papers made from southern pine by the Forest Products Laboratory, of Madison, Wis., and declared that it compared favorably with any now on the market.

Senator Harris, who at one time was chairman of the federal trade commission, investigated increasing prices in the newsprint industry in that capacity and visited paper mills in Canada, where about two-thirds of the newsprint used by American newspapers now is made.

It was as a result of this visit that, when he was elected to the senate, Senator Harris interested himself in the development of southern pine pulp for making newsprint. For the past three years he has secured appropriations for experiments in the manufacture of paper with this southern product. He now reports that the government laboratory at Madison is greatly encouraged with results.

An additional appropriation already has been made for carrying on the experiments next year and it is expected that ultimately almost all American newsprint will come from the southern pine forests, a development which, the senator states, will mean much to the southern section of the country.

Has Had No Asthma
For Two Years Now

Felt Like New Man in 2 Weeks, and Asthma Soon Disappeared.

Entirely rid of asthma in six months, and free from it ever since, is the experience of Frank Coleman, 210 Madison Ave., N. E., Rossmore, Va. He says:

"I suffered from asthma for 15 years. I had it in severe form until I started taking Getz's in August, 1922. Within two weeks I felt like a new man. My cough and pain disappeared, and within 6 months every symptom of asthma had left me. I had taken 12 bottles of Getz's and I have had no sign of asthma."

Suffer from asthma, bronchitis or severe chronic cough, should read the vital information about these diseases in a booklet which will be sent free by Getz's, Indianapolis, Ind. BAPTISTS DEMAND DRY ENFORCEMENT

Detroit, June 21.—(AP)—Unequivocal and open commitment to "an honest and effective enforcement of the prohibition laws" was demanded of both major political parties in resolutions adopted without debate today by the Northern Baptist convention.

The six-day convention adjourned tonight. The 1928 convention was awarded to Denver, Colo.

Other resolutions adopted without dissent pledged the convention to active cooperation with the Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. in prohibition enforcement; reaffirmed the church's stand for outlawry of war; again approved the world court as one of the essential agencies for peaceful settlement of international disputes; approved President Coolidge's "hands-off" policy with regard to Mexican church affairs, and set aside the year beginning May 1, 1929, as "a year of world-wide evangelism."

The convention specifically petitioned the democratic national convention at Houston, Texas, next week to include in its platform a "clear-cut and positive pledge" that if its candidates for the presidency and vice presidency are elected "the eighteenth amendment and all supporting legislation will be honestly and vigorously enforced."

The resolutions pledged the convention and called upon its constituency to support and vote "for only such men for the presidency and vice presidency and other high offices who will unequivocally and openly commit themselves to honest and effective enforcement of the prohibition laws."

The president and executive committee were instructed to place the resolutions before the democratic convention and before the nominees of both the democratic and republican parties.

State Laboratory Tribute To Work Of Gov. Hardman

When Governor Hardman steps down from the dais as Georgia's chief executive, he will leave behind at least one evidence that a physician has occupied the gubernatorial chair.

He will leave behind as a memento of his administration a state health laboratory the equal, if not the peer, of any other in all the south, according to officials of the state board of health.

Workmen this week placed the finishing touches upon the remodeled and greatly improved laboratory of the health board in the basement of the capitol—a renovation project that has been in progress since early in the year.

And it is largely, if not entirely, to Georgia's physician-governor that credit for the improvement is due, according to Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state health commissioner.

Early in his administration Governor Hardman evinced a keen interest in the work of the health board, said Dr. Abercrombie, and soon afterward took the lead in efforts to have the laboratory remodeled and fitted with the most modern equipment.

Now for the first time, it was explained, the state has fully adequate facilities for handling analyses of municipal water, for manufacturing and distributing serums of various kinds, and for conducting tests for rabies, venereal disease, diphtheria and other disease germs that menace the public's health.

By way of showing its appreciation, the health board planned for Friday of this week in the capitol a luncheon complimenting the governor, at which members of the health board, state house officials and other were to pay brief tribute to his efforts in behalf of a healthier Georgia.

3 ARIZONA SNAKES ENLIVEN LUNCHEON OF JUNIOR CHAMBER

Three live Arizona snakes added a bizarre touch to the weekly luncheon of the Junior Chamber of Commerce held Thursday noon. The snakes were brought to Atlanta by G. A. Glander, a delegate to the national convention of the junior chambers, held recently at San Antonio.

Mr. Glander stated that the snakes were part of the realism of a snake dance staged by the delegations from Phoenix, Ariz. He asked for them and got them from the Arizonians after the dance was over. The snakes were presented to the local Jaycee organization by Mr. Glander.

Though they are harmless the local Jaycees decided that there is no place for snakes in the organization's office so, after the lunch, the reptiles were taken to a permanent home in the Grant Park zoo.

COMMISSION TO HOLD
RATE HEARING JUNE 26

Hearing on a case involving freight rates on building material in effect between points in Georgia, scheduled upon petition of interests in seven cities of the state, will be held before the Georgia public service commission June 26, Chairman James A. Perry announced Thursday.

The petition originated with the Augusta Traffic Bureau, Mr. Perry explained, and a hearing on rates in effect at Augusta was set for a date several months ago. Before the case came up for consideration, however, additional interests in six other cities requested that the issue be broadened to state-wide proportions, which requests the commission granted.

Cities represented among the petitioners for a rate investigation were said to be Augusta, Atlanta, Rome, LaGrange, Albany and Columbus. It is the commission's intention to hear all interested parties at the hearing on June 26, Mr. Perry said.

Other cases docketed for hearing in the near future have been announced as follows:

June 26—American Railway Express company; application for authority to close agency at Saffold, Ga.

June 27—Sandersville Railroad company; application for authority to discontinue passenger trains Nos. 1 and 2 on Sunday only.

June 27—Southern Railway company; petition to revise switching rates at Atlanta on sand.

June 27—Central of Georgia Railway company; application for authority to discontinue ticket agency at Vineville Station, Macon, Ga.

YOUNG SWIMMERS ORDERED TO DRESS AND DESTROY POND

The joys of a home-made swimming hole and suitless swimming were enjoyed for a short time Thursday morning by eight small boys who live in the neighborhood of 930 Dalney street. Their fun was short-lived, however, as neighbors complained and Call Officers Evans and Watkins soon arrived on the bank of the "ole swimmin' hole" and made the boys dress and demolish the improvised pond which they had made by damming a small stream.

Two Local Officers United In Salvation Army Wedding

Salvation Army workers and interested visitors packed the Salvation Army temple, at 54 Ellis street, Thursday night to witness the colorful ceremony at which two young officers, Captain Monica Farrar and Captain James Longino were united in the first "hallelujah wedding" held since the army occupied its southern territorial headquarters here. Commissioner William A. McIntyre, commanding officer of the Salvation army in 15 southern states, conducted the ceremony with the assistance of territorial and divisional officers while the territorial staff band and songster brigade provided a stirring musical program of Salvation army marches, songs and devotional music. The full strength of the Salvation army in Atlanta, in the uniform of territorial and divisional officers, formed a military setting for the services at which the young couple dedicated their joint efforts to the work of spreading the gospel and relieving human suffering.

COMPTROLLER WRIGHT TO SEEK REELECTION

General William A. Wright, state comptroller, one of the veteran state officials of Georgia, announced Thursday that he will be a candidate for reelection and will run in the state primary, to be held September 12. In announcing his candidacy General Wright issued the following brief statement: "I am a candidate for the office of comptroller general. My record in office is known to the people of Georgia. In the discharge of my duties, if reelected, I pledge myself to give the same faithful and conscientious service in the future that I have given in the past."

Braddock was arraigned before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith and bound over under $200 bond early Thursday morning, and then, at 10 o'clock, pleaded guilty under a criminal information filed by the district attorney and was fined $40. CHANGE IN TAX SYSTEM ADVOCATED BY NORMAN

R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner, and a member of the Georgia industrial commission, advocated sweeping changes in the present state taxing system in an address to members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association at a called meeting Thursday night. "The state should derive its revenue from the income tax and the general tax on business. The ad valorem tax for state purposes should be eliminated, and the taxation of real estate should be left entirely to the counties and municipalities as a source of revenue," Mr. Norman told the merchants.

The present system of taxation is a burden on business, a handicap on industry and is preventing the flow of outside capital into Georgia. The head of one of Georgia's leading trust companies told me that he could name at least 15 new industries kept out of Georgia because of our uncertain and unfair tax laws." Mr. Norman has formulated a plan which he believes will eliminate a great deal of the irregularities in Georgia's taxing system, and is delivering addresses to various bodies throughout the state, outlining his plan to them. Several members of the local association spoke in favor of the plan outlined by Mr. Norman. Though no official action was taken by the association, C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary, who presided at the meeting, said that he would submit the plan to the board of directors at the next meeting.

MEX. AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION BEING RATIFIED

Mexico City, June 21.—(AP)—A majority of the state legislatures have ratified the constitutional amendments proposed by General Alvaro Obregon and passed recently at a special session of congress. The amendments provide supreme court magistrates and judges shall be appointed by the president instead of being elected, that the number of federal deputies be reduced and that autonomous municipal authorities in Mexico City and other towns in the federal district be substituted for the council directly controlled by the president. It was expected today that President Calles would soon issue a decree declaring that the constitution had been amended in accordance with the bills.

SLICER SENTENCED;
NEW TRIAL SOUGHT

J. Sam Slicer, former president of the Colonial Trust company, who was convicted Wednesday afternoon by a jury in Fulton superior court, was sentenced Thursday morning by Judge Virlyn B. Moore to serve from eight to ten years in prison on charges of fraudulent insolvency. Slicer presented a motion for a new trial, and Judge Moore set the supersedeas bond at $8,000 pending a hearing on the motion. Slicer, accompanied by P. P. Jackson, bondsman, left the courthouse Thursday afternoon for the home of T. C. Miller, clerk of the superior court, at Niskie Lake, and late at night it was announced that the bond had been approved.

Higher bond for Slicer was advocated by Solicitor General John A. Boykin before Judge Moore Thursday morning. Judge Moore, however, held that as Slicer already was under heavy bond on other indictments growing out of the bank crash, the $8,000 would be sufficient.

September 8 was set by Judge Moore as the date for hearing arguments on the motion for a new trial. Meanwhile, the court stenographer is to transcribe the record in the case, and both sides are to prepare their briefs.

The verdict of guilty was returned by the jury after approximately three hours' deliberation. The case was in progress two weeks and one day. No definite date has been set for the trial of T. J. Norman, vice president of the Colonial Trust company, who was jointly indicted with Slicer.

Unique Chandelier
Offered as Prize
To Camp Fire Girls

A chandelier made of a large wagon wheel suspended by chains, with candles set in the rim and the Indian name for "Where Dreams Come True" circling the band, has been offered by Mrs. Lamar Rutherford Lipscomb as a prize for the Camp Fire craft class which submits the best design for a flag for the Atlanta Camp Fire Girls' camp at Toxco.

The camp was opened Tuesday evening, at which time Mrs. Lipscomb, well-known author, entertained the girls with a talk on the Cherokees, an Indian tribe which once roamed that section. Mrs. Lipscomb and others were guests of the girls at dinner at the opening.

Mrs. Irving Thomas
To Face Court Today
In Alleged Contempt

Judge John D. Humphries this morning will decide whether or not the charges of contempt of court lodged against Mrs. Irving Thomas, regent of Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., ought to be passed on by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, who issued the order which it is now claimed has been violated. The case was called Thursday by Judge Humphries, but was checked until today.

Mrs. Thomas was cited for alleged contempt of court as head of the chapter when neighbors of the Habersham hall claimed that Judge Moore's order requiring the presence of D. A. R. chaplains and police officers at public dances in the chapter house had been violated.

Mickey Walker Beats Hudkins in Title Go

Champion Earns Clean Decision Over Challenger in 10 Furious Rounds; Nebraskan Warned For Low Blows.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 21.—(United News.)—In the midst of one of the most terrific downpours that ever beset a championship battle, Mickey Walker, of St. Louis, retained his middleweight title tonight by outfighting Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska, in ten furious rounds.

Fierce as the storm was, it barely exceeded in fury the two-fisted attack which Hudkins launched against the champion and after it was over the cheers of the crowd of 35,000 who took their duking to see the battle were all for the challenger.

Nevertheless, Walker deserved to retain the title for he fought a far cleaner fight than the Wildcat from Nebraska, who fouled him in every conceivable manner. The champion landed the harder, cleaner blows and won five of the rounds. Hudkins put on a furious rally in the tenth but at

The finish it was Walker's hand that was raised.

Huddins Hits Low.

Huddins was continually warned by the referee for his low blows but apparently he did not care. He was warned but never severe enough to declare a foul.

With fighters inflicted severe damage on the other and at one stage of the fight both men were bleeding.

The weather which had threatened throughout the afternoon, broke out before the preliminaries but as hos-fighters began to get under way the clouds appeared again.

Along in the early minutes of the eighth round the rain began to fall. The ninth was held under a steady drizzle, and at the beginning of the final stanza a cloudburst developed.

The men stood in the center of the ring, presenting a sad spectacle to the gaily dressed battlers that had started at the sound of the opening gong.

Both dripping wet, they stood toe to toe for several minutes, slamming away with their fists. The water-soaked gloves splashed against each other's body, weighted by the water from the heavens.

But Hinkley was a last-minute stand. Unmolested throughout the fight, he could win only by a knockoff the "Wildcat" from a knockout punch and he did.

After the fight.

The Nebraska had put up a game fight but he had met a more clever lion in the champion and the crown tonight remains on the "Bulldog" who showed his ability to box was greater than his opponent's and that his game-ness was equal to that of his foe.

The dripping principals were solidly on their feet at the end and the referee, Ed Walker, declared a technical victory, which was popular with the crowd, although there was a hurried exodus from the White Sox park for the cars, elevated trains and taxicabs.

out. He tried to put over the blow but, like Walker, was blinded by the drenching rain. He swung hard for the blow but could not make it.

The champion needed only to stave

It was a game crowd that saw a game fight and practically all of the 35,000 spectators remained to see the champion's crown remain undisturbed.

Bob Jones' 73 Places Him Well Ahead of Other Big Guns

Many Favored Sons In Rear Of Atlantian

Experts Counting on Bobby To Come Through in Later Rounds of U. S. Open.

BY ALAN J. GOULD,

Associated Press Sports Editor.

Olympia Fields, Chicago, June 21.—(P)—But for the misdirection of his brassie shot to the crowded eighteenth green, when he mistook a woman's yellow hat for the flag over the cup, Frank Ball, of Atlanta, British-born professional, might have been two strokes out in front of the national open golf field tonight instead of in a tie with Henry Ciuci for the lead.

Ball, straight as a die with the wood all the way, fired a full brassie to the green, 240 yards away, for his second shot on the 405-yard hole. As he did so he turned to a friend and remarked: "That was a nice one." It leaves me a putt for a three.

When the last of the embattled brigade had finished the hazardous journey over the rolling and troubled terrain of Olympia's picturesque No. 4 course 21-year-old Henry Ciuci, Illinois-American professional of the Mill River club, Stratford, Conn., was tied for the lead with Frank Ball, 34-year-old pro of the East Lake club, Atlanta, home course of Bobby Jones. Ciuci and Ball, playing sterling and at times spectacular golf, scored identical rounds of 35-35—70 to clip one stroke from par for the difficult 6,726-yard links. One stroke behind them, with a fine par 36-35—71, came the third sensation of the day, Leonard B. Schmutte, former Indiana champion but now representing Lima, Ohio.

Even though they are not expected to keep up such a startling pace when the field of some 140 clubswingers at any rate. Oddly contrasting in types, they come of golfing stock, too, for Ciuci has seven brothers and two sisters playing the game while Ball comes of a famous British golfing family a cousin of John Ball, former open and amateur champion of Great Britain.

Ciuci Former Star. Ciuci was third in the British open four years ago and fifth when Bobby Jones won that classic for the first time in 1926.

While the one and only Bobby himself had to be satisfied with a 73 Walter Hagen, the British open king with a 75, and the defending American titleholder, Tommy Armour, with a 76, Ball and Ciuci pummeled old man par at every opportunity. Straight as a string, not once off the fairway on his entire round, Ball was steady as a rock as he shot around in obscurity. Ciuci, likewise neglected by

H. Wilson Goes After Fan Who "Razzed" Him

Chicago, June 21.—(United News.) Hack Wilson, home run clobberer of the Chicago Cubs, held up the second game here today with the St. Louis Cardinals for 12 minutes when he leaped into the grandstand after a spectator who had "razzed" him.

The incident occurred in the ninth inning. Eager fans filled the playing field and police and umpires had considerable difficulty in restoring order. Several players followed the Cubs' centerfielder into the stands and told him away before he could strike the fan who had aggravated him.

Expert Says Two Favorites Will Come Through in Later Rounds; Others Are Dangerous.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

Olympia Fields, Chicago, June 21.—Facing the trees, ditches, abysmal ravines, heavy rough and deep bunkers of Olympia fields today 140 of the world's greatest golfers moved around like cats walking over a hot stove and only a few failed to get their feet burned.

Most of the others got badly scorched. The leaders were all outsiders who took chances and forgot the hazards as they went ahead to play their game in the first round of the open championship which found sunny skies and steaming heat after many days of fog and rain. The first day's honors fell to Henry Ciuci, a 24-year-old entry from Bridgeport, Conn., and Frank Ball, pro at East Lake Country club, Atlanta, home course of the great Bob Jones. Ciuci and Ball each turned in a 70 and just back of this romping pair came Leonard Schmutte, of Lima, Ohio, with a 71.

Played Their Game.

No one had mentioned this trio in the early dispatches which spoke loudly of Jones, Hagen, Sarazen and others known to ancient wars. While all these favorites were trying to keep out of trouble and play on the safe side, using a certain amount of caution for this purpose, Ciuci, Ball and Schmutte, the ignoble unknowns as far as the southwingers were concerned, were running their tee shot down the narrow middle and hammering their irons for the pin. They had no shining reputations to protect so they stepped out and played golf. Ciuci is the Bridgeport kid who won the Florida open this winter. Frank Ball is now Stuart Maiden's success or at East Lake, Atlanta, where Bobby Jones goes eagle hunting. Schmutte is a 22-year-old entry from Lima, who led the Cleveland district in the sectional qualifying round. But their names had never been mentioned with the elite until they took charge of the big parade and stormed their way around in the summer heat of Olympia's valleys and ravines.

Hagen remarked after his round, "I don't mind my position. I'd rather start slowly and get going later. I want to make sure I'm not too far from the cup." Hagen must have had six or eight putts that either flinched the cup or quivered on the lip without falling in. He might have had 70 or a 71 if only a few of these putts had dropped, but he is still one of the most dangerous entries in the field.

On two of the short holes Hagen was only seven feet from the cup on his mashie niblick pitches, but he couldn't cajole the ball into the elusive cup. They simply wouldn't drop for him.

The incident occurred in the ninth inning. Eager fans filled the playing field and police and umpires had considerable difficulty in restoring order. Several players followed the Cubs' centerfielder into the stands and told him away before he could strike the fan who had aggravated him.

The two big favorites are still Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen. Neither was at his best today. Jones had trou-

British Open and American Professional Open Champion.

Olympia Fields Club, Chicago, June 21.—Records of every sort may be broken in the open championship of the United States which got under way today when the players who qualified in 14 sections played the first round.

The largest first day crowd of any championship gathered to see the stars do the best they could, with the first round finished the most significant fact to me is that Bobby Jones is well placed ahead of the professionals who are rated to have the best chance to beat him to the wire. Jones did not play with his usual precision, but he still got a score of 73 and missed a very short putt at the eighteenth to stop him from doing even four.

Bob Man to Beat. While this is early in the game to make any predictions, I have an idea that Jones is the boy we will have to watch. He has been coming on to his game and if he could wiggle out with a 73 today, when he eliminates some of the mistakes he made in this round he will put some figures on the score board that will take a lot to beat.

A number of golfers had low rounds as they always do in the start of the championship and not until the end of the third round will the class rise to the top. Some of these who did well today will fall by the wayside and others who do not look so good tonight will be right up and within reach of the title.

The situation here is similar to the situation in Europe. Over there the people are looking around for someone to stand off the rush of the Americans and over here the professionals are looking for someone to stop the rush of Bobby Jones.

There is one man I want to mention and that is Jim Barnes. Jim is a former British and American open titleholder. He was in Britain last month and he had a bad start there. I think he took an 80. After that he settled down and pulled himself well into the money by playing some fine golf.

Barnes Looks Good. I think that Jim is ready and that he is going to do well. He started here with a 73. I like his physical condition, his shots and his mental attitude. He has been a bit nervous since he was at Washington some years ago and he is one of the players who may beat Bobby.

The quality of golf played in golf championships may not be any better than in recent years, but more boys are playing high-class golf and as this is a game in which the breaks count for a lot, the chances of a dark horse coming through increase with the growth of the game. Where a few years ago you could name the winner among a mere handful of the more skillful players, today the handful has increased to a basketful. Good golfers have come here from every section of America to take part in the significant gamble of scratch play.

Just to give an idea of the terrific competition I counted around 50 players who were under 30 and 30 who were 75 or better and I do not consider 75 in the first round as so bad. I can't for I had it myself. The lowest scores were two seventies.

and the array of talented players trailing close behind this figure up to the 80 mark is a remarkable tribute to American golf.

Aubrey Boomer, of St. Cloud, Paris, and Archie Compston, of England, representing the old world did 75 and 76. Both were a bit nervous I suspect and they did well to make these good scores for the biggest of this event in every way is quite upsetting.

The American open is surely one of the greatest sporting events of the year which has grown with tremendous strides, since 1904, when Willie Dunn won at the St. Andrews Golf club, near New York.

I also suspect that the championship has lost just a little of the purely sporting nature as it is bound to do as the game is in such national favor that the winner can look forward to a fine reward.

Orissa Is Winner Of Clover Stakes

New York, June 21.—(P)—Orissa, bay daughter of Purchase and Durbar, earned $6,150 for the Hancock stable today with a thrilling victory in the Clover stakes for two-year-old fillies at Aqueduct today. Laverne Fator's powerful ride pulled Orissa home in front by a nose advantage over Aquatella. Exposed was third. The five furlongs were covered in 1:00 2-5. Orissa rewarded her backers at 4 to 1. R. S. Clark's Seascamp captured the Beech Hill at Latonia and paid the juicy odds of $21.28 for $2. Brondelle was second by a length with Tempest third. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:50.

2 Kayoes Feature Sunset Park Card

Featured by a pair of two-round knockouts, L. R. Atkinson drew a packed house in his regular Thursday night card at Sunset park, the performers all being colored. Roy Dunn, middleweight, from Macon, crossed over with a right to the stomach to put Battling Cox, of Fort Benning, out of business in the second of one of the three 10-round feature bouts. The other two-round knockout of the evening saw Gene Thomas put away Joe Petty. Mobile welterweight, in the second round with a solar plexus blow. In the final 10-round Kayo Blount gave Fighting Tom a terrific lacing, winning the first six rounds, with three others even, and Tom winning the third round. A battle royal and paid at the rate of $51.18 for $2. opened the show.

General A. G. Lott Celebrates Birthday at Fort McPherson

Fort McPherson, June 21.—Mrs. Abraham G. Lott entertained at an informal party Thursday evening in honor of General Lott's birthday at their quarters in the post. Invited to the occasion were a group of close friends of General and Mrs. Lott. Later in the evening tables were arranged for bridge.

Mrs. David E. Barnett and Mrs. De Witt C. Smith entertained Thursday afternoon at the Officers' club at an elaborate bridge-tee, including in their guest list 100 members of Atlanta and McPherson social circles.

Garden flowers in colorful profusion were effectively arranged in the window boxes which lined the club rooms and the mantle held a low bowl of these same flowers with tall pink tapers in silver holders. The tea table, overlaid with an exquisite cloth, was graced with a silver bowl of roses in palest pink and the tapers also reflected the pink motif. The first prize was a luncheon set of Italian cut work while the second was a cheese and cracker dish of blue glass. The cut prize for the tea guests was a set of green glass salad plates formed in the fashionable leaf design. There were 12 tables in play and 20 guests were invited for tea.

Miss Majorie Ripley entertained Wednesday at a swimming party at the Druid Hills golf club and later the guests enjoyed a beautifully appointed dinner at the quarters of Colonel and Mrs. A. H. Ripley in the post. At the long table, graced with a silver bowl of pink sweet peas and larkspur, covers were placed for Misses Emily and Elizabeth Tilton, Nancy Webber, Dorothy Ann Holliday and Sallie and Polly Webber.

Betty Ann Keeler, the petite daughter of Captain and Mrs. Maxwell G. Keeler, entertained a group of the sub-junior set of the post personnel at her quarters Wednesday afternoon in celebration of her first birthday. A birthday cake with one pink candle was placed in the center of the tea table and the color motif of pink was carried out in the low bowls of sweet peas, and in the clever little paper favors.

Friday evening the hop at the Officers' club will be an enjoyable affair and the several dinners planned by members of the army set preceding the day will be points of interest.

565 EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS HELD BY ARMY CADETS

Holding 565 open-air evangelistic meetings, at which 381 converts were won, was announced Thursday by Commissioner William A. McIntyre, southern territorial commander, as a feature of the ten months' training here of 66 Salvation Army cadets who will be commissioned as Salvation Army officers in public ceremonies at the 54 street temple next Tuesday night.

As officers they will be assigned to cities throughout the 15 southern states to carry on the home missionary and charitable activities of the army and the open-air meetings were arranged as one feature of practical training to fit them for the work.

The formal commissioning of cadets, with a colorful display of the military panoply of the Salvation Army and rousing music by the territorial staff band will be open to the public.

COLONEL SAM WILKES LOSES VALUED PAPERS

A black bag containing valuable papers has been mislaid by Colonel Sam Wilkes, publicity agent for the Atlanta & West Point railroad. Colonel Wilkes thinks he left it in the office of some friend, but can't recall which. As he has so many friends, he finds it impossible to extend the search over all the territory so asks whoever finds it to return it and receive his thanks for a vast relief from worry. Colonel Wilkes' telephone number is Walnut 1722.

Three Generations

By WARWICK DEEPIING

THREE GENERATIONS BY WARWICK DEEPIING

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookseller in London and later in Winterbourne, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Craven when his son Conrad sees him there. He's been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Lance, that he has seen his father. Lance Pybus, who has been in London and after gaining his father's reluctant consent and a small allowance he devotes himself to writing. In London Lance meets and is attracted to Olive Gade, a manikin.

INSTALLMENT LIX. A REBUFF.

The voice came from the sitting room, and before Lance had begun to explain himself it was heard again, "Is it you? Boh, old man? She's—out somewhere."

Lance stepped into the passage. He felt that he had to make an immediate reply to that unexpected challenge. "Is Miss Merri in? I've walked over from Castle Craven."

Then followed a little silence as of surprise, but Lance fancied that he could hear a chair pushed back.

"My sister's out somewhere. Who is it?"

"Lance Pybus, is that Mr. Merri?" The initiative was his and he took it. He walked up the passage and pushed open the door, to see a man in bagged and creased gray flannel trousers and a blue coat with brass buttons looking towards him and the open door.

"Forgive me for coming in. You know my grandfather, I think."

The man in the chair remained silent and unsure. His thin face was half in the shadow, and it had the sinister elusiveness of a face that is unfriendly and not clearly seen. His attitude was a little furtive and unwelcome.

"Old Pybus, the porter at the Saracen?"

"Yes," said Lance quite gently, "old Pybus, the porter. Do you think I shall find your sister out there?"

Merri's blind eyelids seemed to stare like shuttered windows. He put a hand and fingered his beard, a strange and half senile gesture, hesitant, almost surreptitious. And Lance was conscious both of repulsion and pity.

He noticed that the thin hand had a slight tremor.

"Afraid I'm worrying you, I'll go out and try to find your sister."

She was not in the garden, and he tried the orchard with its rank green grass and alleys of old trees. Nor was she in the orchard, but through the thinning leaves of one of the hedges he saw her in the little sloping field below the beech woods. And he stood still for a moment, watching her with a quick and sensitive curiosity, and a feeling of strange inevitableness.

Going to the gate in the hedge he passed through it. He wanted to call to her as he felt toward her.

"Mary."

The naturalness of it slipped out of him. She was about twenty yards away, fastening the gate of one of the wire runs. She turned and faced him, and his claiming of her as Mary. His impression was that she smiled.

He moved forward a few steps and paused.

"I have seen your brother. He told me I might find you here."

She slipped the key of a padlock into a pocket of her jumper. And from her manner of looking at him he got the impression that she knew that he knew. He was conscious of a feeling of expectancy.

"I have just finished. We'll go in and have tea."

In the porch Mary paused, and her glance touched Lance's face and he divined in her a little tremor of something, distress or apprehension.

"Do you mind leaving the kettle. I'll go in and see to the kettle."

He was startled, but in a moment he understood. He closed and locked the door, and, hanging his hat on a peg and slipping his ash stick into the brown drainpipe, he entered the sitting room.

"I found Mary. She was shutting up the chickens."

The brother's blind eyelids flickered. He moved uneasily in his chair.

"Better put something on the fire, hadn't we?"

"I'll do it. Mary has gone to get tea."

And Lance established himself on the hearth rug close to her blind brother.

the contrast of those two profiles as seen against the light of the fire; the one was alive, the other had a sulky deadness.

Lance turned to her, smiling. She looked at her brother. "Gill's."

And then her eyes met Lance's, and he understood.

"I say, Merri, do play to us, afterwards."

The eyelids quivered. "I'm not in the mood. Sorry."

Lance did not look at Mary, but he leaned forward and took the kettle from the fire, and held out his other hand for the teapot.

She surrendered it silently, and went to the window that looked toward the orchard. The vista of grass and old trees had a dimness, though twilight was not yet. She pulled down the blind, and Lance noticed that act of hers and, seeing her turn toward the other window, he was struck by a something in her eyes, a look of apprehension.

"Tea by firelight—is that the idea?"

She answered that she disliked the November twilight, and pulled down the other blind, and he wondered whether she was shutting things out, other possibilities, incursions. He felt sure that it was so and in him that inevitable tenderness toward her seemed to leap and glow.

During tea Lance tried to draw Merri out by talking to him about music and the tendencies of modern music, but Merri was not interested, and Lance gave it up. He stayed on for half an hour, smoking a pipe with Mary's permission. He had offered Merri his pouch, and the fellow had refused it. He appeared to make a point of not smoking with Lance, sitting there with an air of sulky patience, and waiting for this chatter.

When his pipe was finished Lance pulled out his watch, and said that he had work to do. He stood over Merri for a moment as though waiting for a hand.

"Good-night," and the blind man began to feel for his pipe.

Mary went with him to the porch door, and closing it after them, wandered down with him to the gate.

"I'm glad you came. You mustn't mind."

"I'm afraid I bored him."

"Everything bore him, poor Gill, everything and nothing."

"Doesn't he touch that piano now?"

"We must get him back to it."

"If one could."

"May I try, Mary?"

"If you will, he used to extemporize. He had real genius, of a kind."

And though she did not thank him, she knew something that he had more than her thanks.

For some days old Pybus was just a little sad. For he felt himself to be a spectator, the old fellow in the chair at his cottage door watching the busy young things at play.

He felt moved to preach a sermon upon matrimony. It would begin with "My children," and end with a blessing. O, old-fashioned fellow, darning marriage as an adventure, and hailing it as a sacrament, the growth of an exquisite comradeship.

Did the Venerable wish to see Lance and Mary consummate that comradeship? Undoubtedly he did. Of all men he craved a mate, but a very particular mate, and the venerable, having pondered upon life, wanted Lance to marry. He wanted him to marry Mary, for he divined in Mary that particular woman. So, during those November days he went about with an air of sage attentiveness. He had left the core of the problem to youth, for the very passion of youth is a solvent of problems, and though it was November old Pybus felt thunder in the air, emotional thunder, and some time the clasp of it would be heard. It would break over the muddled head of that poor blind devil, and over the head of Mary, and over the head of someone else. Were ash sticks carried without a purpose? But if Lance got hurt—

While Lance, prodding the turf of Mary's field with his self-same stick, and devotedly probing the problem, and finding himself prodding the air as well as the more solid turf, would fall back upon the seemingly obvious protest.

"You can't go on like this, Mary. You can't chuck your life away."

And looking over his head she would reply that, somehow or other, you couldn't drop certain burdens. They were fastened to your shoulders, and you would not be happy if you let the cords be cut, and then sneak off into the future, ed off into the future.

New Orleans, June 21. (P) Advancing to levels nearly $2 a bale above the previous close, the cotton market opened in late trading today under rather extensive realizing by satisfied longs.

October contracts settled off from the previous day's close at 21.00, a point higher for the day. The general market closed barely steady at a net loss of 1/16.

Liverpool cables were off 3 penny points better than end of first trade. They showed gains of 6 to 8 points.

December contracts were off 1/16 and continued to advance after the start under the stimulus of shorts covering and a wave of buying from speculators, coupled with private advices of rain in Oklahoma and North Texas.

Gains Others Show.

Before the initial decline was supplied July traded to 21.07, October 20.80, and December 20.75, 20 to 21

The market was buoyed by the upgrade for the whole morning session due mainly to the unfavorable reports from the inter-continental crop deterioration and better weather forecast. The market consisted well into the afternoon trading coming both from the trade and speculation. At the highest July reached 21.92, October 20.76 and December 20.90, or 34 to 36 points above the previous close.

In the final hour, the market satisfied long started taking profits and when the market closed July had traded off to 21.06, October 20.76 and December 20.90, or a net advance of 16 to 20 points.

The favorable weather over the belt failed to exert any influence on the market. Under the circumstances, the opinion that a few days of fair weather would hardly offset the recent long

CROP NEWS

INSPIRES BUYING.

New York, June 21.—(Craw)—Continuation of yesterday's buying was found additional inspiration in today's market. The weather report was responsible for further advances in the cotton market. October contracts advanced 10 to 15 points, November, 10 to 15, and 137 points above the recent low level, but lost part of the gain during the closing. The weather report was the final tone of the market was barely steady at net advances of 12 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 6 to 9 points and very soon showed net gains of 20 to 26 points over the previous day's closing. The buying brought in by relatively firm cables and reports of showers in the south was absorbed on reactions of 10 to 15 points and the market soon firmed up again.

Buying More Active.

Buying became more active after publication of the detailed weather report. The heavy rain covering general rain in Oklahoma and Arkansas, with heavy participation at some points in Texas, and the heavy rain in the south no doubt promoted demand, which was attributed to covering of shorts. The market advanced with a moderate trade demand and broadening of commission house interest.

All months made new high ground for this movement, July selling up to 21.30, and December to 21.37, or 53 points above the previous high. The quotations on active positions, and within 28 points of the best price for the movement, were 10 to 15 points in the case of May contracts.

Private cables reported general buying and covering in Liverpool on unfavorable crop news and scarcity of contracts, adding that sales of cotton cloths were smaller, but yarns steadier with fair demand.

Exports today 13,417, making 7,376,797 so far this season. Port earnings, 5,332. United States stocks, 948,720.

SOVIET CONSULATE IN TIENTSIN RAIDED

Tientsin, China, June 21.—(AP)—The Soviet consulate was raided last night by a large body of armed police acting under orders of General Fu Tso-yi, nationalist garrison commander at Tientsin.

They made an exhaustive search for several hours. The Chinese police explained that the raid was due to information received that numerous Chinese communists had a large quantity of arms hidden in the building. Consul Gregory displayed nine pistols with ammunition and declared that these were necessary to defend the consulate against white Russians.

It was understood that the search failed to reveal either Chinese communists or propaganda.

Southern troops near Tientsin attacked the Hsi Ho pumping station, which is part of the city's waterworks. They demanded the evacuation of the Chinese in charge of the station.
